The Day-After: Sarah Marmor Discusses the Election Results on Vocalo.org

Scharf Banks Marmor Partner Sarah Marmor was a guest on public radio station Vocalo the day after the 2016 presidential election to discuss the surprising results and what may happen next.

Marmor and others talked about the results of the presidential election and what those results mean for issues affecting women. They also discussed how the country will move forward as one after such a divisive campaign.

In uncertain times, Marmor put forth a voice of reason with a “take positive action” sentiment.

We can’t demonize the people who voted for Donald Trump, Marmor said. We need to offer solutions, rather than reject the people who voted him in. It’s up to us to come up with positive solutions that will gain some traction.
